Thursday, September 14 1704

From the Paris Gazette, dated Aug. 30.

Hambourg, August 13.

THE Dutchess of Holstein, Mother of the deceas'd Duke of Holstein Gottorp, lies dangerously Sick at Kiel. A New Contest is risen between the Dukes of Meclenbourg-Swerin and Strelitz, upon the former's refusing to pay the other 9000 Crowns, which he was oblig'd to do by the Treaty made between them, under Pretence that the latter has not perform'd some Articles which he affirms they had agreed to. The Duke of Strelitz has had recourse to the King of Sweden and to the Duke of Zell Guarantees of the Treaty, and those Princes threaten the Duke of Swerin to send Troops into the Bailiwick of Boitzenbourg, the Revenues of which were appropriated by the Treaty to the Payment of that Sum. The Duke of Swerin has sent to Berlin, to desire the Protection of the Elector of Brandenburg [so the French call him, not having yet acknowledg'd his Title of King of Prussia]. We have Advice from the Province of Schonen, that 1200 Swedes are embark'd there to be transported to Wismar or Stralsund; and 'tis currently reported these Troops are to be employ'd against the Duke of Swerin, to oblige him to give Satisfaction to the Duke of Strelitz. We are assur'd the Swedish Troops that are drawn together in Pomerania, and who were to invade Saxony, are commanded to suspend their March till they receive new Orders.

From the Brussels Gazette, dated Aug. 26.

Hambourg, August 17. The Dutchess of Holstein continues dangerously Sick at Kiel: The Prince Administrator of the Dutchy of Holstein Gottorp, who has been to visit her, is now at Sleswick, whence he will speedily repair to Tonningen to see the Barracks finish'd that are making there for lodging the Garrison, that the Inhabitants of that Place may not be burden'd with them in their Houses. Letters from Dresden say, they are very uneasie upon the Advices they have receiv'd from Poland, that while the King of Sweden endeavours to engage King Augustus in Russia, the new King of Poland, Stanislaus, will advance with a Body of 9 or 10000 Poles towards the Electorate of Saxony to invade it, and that the Swedish Troops in Pomerania will advance at the same time to assist the Poles.

From the Rotterdam Gazette, dated Sept. 8.

Rotterdam, Sept. 8. Letters from Nismes advise, that two of the Officers of the French Refugees who embark'd at Villa Franca to go to succour the Camisars, but were taken by the Chevalier de Rouannez, being brought to Nismes, were tried by Monsieur de Basville, Intendant of the Province of Languedoc, by Order from Court; and being condemn'd, one of them (who was a Gentleman of Poitou,) had his Head cut off; the other (who was of Nismes,) was hang'd. They were executed in the Town of Nismes the 15th of August. Indifferent Judges are of Opinion this is a Violation of the Laws of War, and that those Officers ought to have been treated as Prisoners of War, seeing they were in the Service of Forreign Potentates that are declar'd Enemies of France. If the Letters from Nismes of the 20th of last Month may be credited, the Camisars are in a miserable Condition. They are dispers'd in little Parties, which are perpetually harass'd by the King's Troops. Not a Day passes but 8 or 10 of them surrender themselves. But Letters from Geneva speak quite otherwise, and tell us, the Camisars are stronger than ever, and that Ravanel commands in the room of the deceas'd Roland.

Kinsale, Sept. 3. This Morning arriv'd here Her Majesty's Ship the Arundel; and the Susanna and Sarah of Bristol, William Hudson Master, laden with Sugar, Cotton, &c. bound for Bristol.

Neither these Letters from Kinsale, nor those from Dublin of the 7th of this Month, make any mention of their having any News at either of those Places of a Fight between the French Fleet and ours.

Yarmouth, Sept. 11. Since my last the light Colliers prepar'd to Sail, but the Wind chopping about they continue here still, being in all upwards of 400 Sail, with the Assistance and Queenborough for their Convoy. We daily expect the Dover here, who went to Harwich for a new Main-yard, having broke one at Sea; she is order'd to be one of the Guard Ships of our Herring-Fishing; meantime our Fishing-Vessels go out with the Solebay.

Portsmouth.

This day the White Lyon Privateer of Flushing, Cornelius Naſſau Commander, brought in a French Ketch of about 40 Tons laden with Brandy bound from Rochel for Dunkirk. She came out in company with 12 other Merchant Ships bound for Dunkirk.
